I believe Colin's account and agree with him that the conduct of both judges named in the complaint was improper.

I have also examined most of the material prepared for the complaint and, while I do not have the expertise needed to evaluate the validity of the material, it seems to be well researched and convincing in the opinion of this lay person. It is on this basis and based on my belief in Colin's account that I am supporting his complaint."

An Dochtúir Stiofán T. ó Maingín faoin Choiste um Iompar Breithiúnach

Sounds great, but perhaps these declarations are a touch premature, given that the JC hasn't even assigned any Judicial Conduct Committee members yet?

On the other hand, maybe they are clairvoyant, given that the 'newly-appointed' Secretary already knew he had the job a full 6 months before it was publically advertised..?

JUDICIAL ACCOUNTABILITY - IRISH STYLE!

The new Judicial Council Bill provides a mechanism to sanction errant judges BUT... sanctions will be held 'in secret' and if anyone names a judge who has been found guilty of misconduct - then that person can go to jail for a year and/or face up to €5,000 in fines!

And THIS is what we have been waiting for for over 20 years!?

Copyright 2020 by the Integrity Ireland Association

The new Judicial Council has finally been set up, and despite being top-heavy with judges, they are seeking applications from members of the public to be appointed to one of the three ‘independent’ committees. In a genuine spirit of public service and, curious as to what the response might be, Stephen applied for posts in two of the committees.

Application for Appointment to the Judicial Conduct Committee – 2-page Cover Letter

Dear Appointments Panel Staff;

May 1st 2020

I write in context of the attached 4-page ‘CV and Resume’ summary in support of my application to be considered for appointment to the Judicial Conduct Committee of the new Judicial Council.

I open by emphasising, most sincerely, that I have always had the utmost respect for justice; and have long-since recognised that no self-respecting nation can aspire to democracy without first ensuring an effective justice system. Indeed, this is what has informed and driven my work with the Integrity Ireland Association these past eight years. This is also why the EU’s Copenhagen Protocols insists upon the same, and why the United Nations’ internationally-recognised Bangalore Principles promote, “independence, impartiality, integrity, propriety, equality, competence and diligence” as ethical essentials for serving judges, and as reflected in the various judicial codes and oaths of office.

These ubiquitous declarations did not, however, prevent a consortium of senior judges in the OECD from setting up the Judicial Integrity Group in 2000, “..in response to declining levels of public confidence in the judiciary” – thereby acknowledging the unsettling gap between official aspirations; the reality on the ground; and the public’s perception of the same. Interestingly, the setting up of the J.I.G. mirrored Ireland’s tentative discussions in 1999 about the urgent need for a judicial oversight body after the fallout from the Sheedy affair. Now, our Judicial Council has finally been established and, despite the 20 long-and-tortuous years to launch, we must collectively maintain hope that this is the beginning of some much-needed reform and improvements in the management and application of justice. It needs to be clearly stated at the outset however, that inasmuch as it is humanly possible to do so, the membership and workings of the Judicial Council must be beyond public suspicion of mere tokenism, and/or of a ‘jobs for the boys’ culture, because the Judicial Conduct Committee in particular, will in effect be the ultimate oversight body in the State, inasmuch as it will oversee the conduct of those who already command final authority in the highest existing statutory oversight institutions – namely, in the nation’s Courts.

It would be less than forthright of me if I did not at this point, draw the Panel’s attention to the fact that not only have I fielded numerous justice-related complaints from members of the public, but that I have, regrettably, had valid legal cause to lodge a number of formal complaints about the conduct and behaviour of certain judges. In context of this application for prospective appointment to the J.C.C., this fact should not be misinterpreted as any purported ‘conflict of interest’ upon which erroneous assumption my application could then be rejected. On the contrary, the lodging of those formal complaints was and is, somewhat ironically, as a direct and explicit consequence of; (i) the unlawful behaviour of certain named judges; (ii) the absence (to date) of any genuine judicial oversight in this State; and (iii) because of the reporting obligations of the respective Criminal Justice Acts whereby all residents and citizens are required, by law, to report certain crimes.

I have also initiated, and/or participated in a number of Court cases variously as; the plaintiff; the defendant; the applicant; the respondent; a witness; a McKenzie friend; and as a lay-prosecutor, and in the process have gathered a solid understanding of the divergences between natural and positive law and between primary and secondary legislation; in context of the overarching primacy of newly-evolving EU Law.

In short, that it has been my dogged adherence to the Rule of Law and my insistence that justice be done that has resulted in over ten years of deeply-unsettling experiences in our Courts, which in turn, has raised profound questions about the overall probity and integrity of our justice system. Far from this creating any purported 'conflict of interest' these experiences render me uniquely qualified for appointment to the J.C.C. on the combined grounds that:

- I am a well-educated, professional layperson with over ten years' intimate, personal knowledge and experience of all of the Irish Courts.
- I maintain a deep and abiding respect for the principles of justice, and for the Rule of Law.
- There are no technical, professional, moral, political, personal or logistical impediments to my appointment. Indeed, the fact alone that I have never held any State-sponsored position underlines my inherent independence, my professional objectivity and political impartiality.
- I understand the disparity between the public's perception of 'the administration of justice' and the actual functions and procedural constraints, when seeking remedy in the Courts.
- I understand that individual judges, regardless of experience or qualifications, cannot be expected to have a perfect, comprehensive and consistent understanding of the law at all times and in every situation – despite the expectation that they project this to the public.

The prevailing socio-political culture under which most public appointments are made in Ireland has always been problematic precisely because of glaring (if unspoken) conflicts of interest. The only real danger of any such 'conflicts' arising in the J.C.C. would be in the appointment of persons who have a vested interest, however minimal, in the suppression of uncomfortable truths. There is already a perceived conflict in the dual declared objectives of; (i) addressing allegations of wrongdoing whilst at the same time, (ii) maintaining public confidence in the judiciary. It seems to me that the latter will naturally follow from robust and authentic oversight.

Finally, I note that my work with the Integrity Ireland Association is almost exactly defined in the five stated criteria for qualification to the J.C.C., namely: (i) The maintenance of standards in regulated professions; (ii) dealing with complaints made against members (of those professions); (iii) mediation and dispute resolution (both within the I-I Association and in the Courts); (iv) (concerning) the administration of justice; and (v) the management and provision of services to the public.

It is upon these collective grounds that I respectfully submit this application.

Sincerely,

Dr Stephen T Manning (etc)

“(ii) Míchlú a tharraingt ar riaradh an cheartais

‘SAVING OUR STATE’

The Integrity Ireland Guide to dealing with Corruption, Cronyism and Criminality in the Irish Justice System

Version 1 – 2015, CheckPoint Press

Faoin mBunreacht, is i gcúirteanna a dhéantar riaradh an cheartais in Éirinn. Is í an cheist atá le breithniú dá bhrí sin an bhféadfadh aon iompar a líomhnaítear a bheith chomh tromchúiseach sin go dtarraingeodh sé míchlú ar riaradh an cheartais, má tá bunús leis. Chun an ardtairseach sin a bhaint amach, bheadh ar iompar breithimh dul chomh fada le baint den mhuinín a ba chóir a bheith ag an bpobal i mbreithiúna a cheapar faoin mBunreacht chun ceartas a riar inár gCúirteanna.

Creideann an gearánach go follasach, agus an gearán seo á dhéanamh, gur tharraing an breitheamh míchlú ar riaradh an cheartais. Arís, is tuiscint mhícheart í sin ar an gcaoi a gcaithfear na riachtanais a chomhlíonadh chun cásanna a réachtáil i nGaeilge. Níl aon iompar den sórt sin nochta, i mo thuairimse, a d'fhéadfadh droch-cháil a chur ar riaradh an cheartais.

Ní mór (a) imeacht ó chaighdeáin aitheanta iompar bhreithiúnach agus (b) iompar a tharraingíonn míchlú ar riaradh an cheartais a bheith ann ionas gur mí-iompar breithiúnach é gearán. Níl ceachtar den dá chritéar sin le feiceáil sa ghearán. Dá bhrí sin, ní mí-iompar breithiúnach é an t-iompar agus dá réir sin níl gearán inghlactha ag féachaint d'Alt 53 (2) (b) den Acht.”

With this in mind, it is worth considering examples and academic discussion of judicial misconduct in Australia to aid our understanding of ‘acknowledged standards’ of judicial misconduct in Ireland. iv. delay in delivering judgments;

v. conduct that would be ‘professional misconduct if the judge were still in practice’ such as plagiarism;

vi. administrative misconduct, such as regularly failing to attend court;

vii. abuse of judicial power such as deciding cases in a manner to gain personal benefit or seeking an acquittal for a friend;

viii. criminal conduct;

ix. morally or politically reprehensible behaviour;"

The reference in part (a) of this definition to ‘acknowledged standards’ of judicial conduct begs the question of the source of these acknowledged standards. Some internal evidence of the legislative intent may be gleaned from the reference to international standards of judicial conduct in subsections 7(1)(b) and 43(2) of the Act which both set out the same principles of judicial independence, impartiality, integrity, propriety (including the appearance of propriety), competence and diligence and to ensure equality of treatment to all persons before the courts. These principles reflect the Bangalore Principles of Judicial Conduct,¹⁵ which are described by the recently published Judicial Council ‘Guidelines concerning Judicial Conduct and Ethics’ as ‘highly respected international standards on which the Oireachtas drew in framing the Judicial Council Act 2019.’¹⁶

It is difficult to definitively state what standards need to be met so that the public would be justified in trusting a court system but as a starting point one would expect such a system to have the following features:

i. compliance with the general principles of natural justice such as hearing both sides of a case, providing reasons for one's decision, and impartial adjudication;

v. 'the skilful application of the law';¹⁰³

vi. an 'obvious commitment to public service in the activities of every facet of a court'.¹⁰⁴ This involves making the court process accessible, avoiding undue delay, seeking and implementing feedback etc;

vii. an appropriate complaints system and accountability mechanisms to address both allegations of judicial misconduct and general complaints"

"94 Ms Justice Nuala Butler observes that judgments ought to be written with the loser, as much as the winner in mind: The loser ... will care very much. Therefore, it is important that on reading the judgment the loser is made aware, first, that the Judge has heard and understood their argument and, second, why the Judge did not agree with that argument. The judgment should be not only a statement of why the winner has won but mainly a statement of why the loser has lost. It is easier for a party to accept defeat if they understand the rationale behind the outcome.

D. R. Pigot & Co. is a law firm. It refuses to prosecute judges. Cf. this conversation on 20/04/2026 . . .

I myself: I'm interested in becoming a client.

D. R. Pigot & Co.: About to do with what?

I myself: Em. So I'm interested in using the Judicial-Council Act two thousand and nineteen at the Judicial-Conduct Committee against a judge.

D. R. Pigot & Co.: OK. Not interested. Alright.

I myself: Em. But you are listed on the Negligence Panel.

D. R. Pigot & Co.: Eh. Not for against judges. No. Against solicitors. OK.

I myself: Can you recommend who I can instruct?

D. R. Pigot & Co.: No. I can't. No.

I myself: Too bad. Bye.

D. R. Pigot & Co.: OK. Bye.

Solicitors boast without doing what they boast about.

Law Firm Hanahoe & Hanahoe LLP misleadingly advertised: "Hanahoe & Hanahoe LLP is solution based in all areas of the law." It made a confession to me that it does not really work in all the areas of the laws. It does not prosecute judges. [. . .]

A solicitor connives at a judge who dishonours a Supreme-Court judgment.

I myself: I I did. I mean I I have read it. Eh. I I brought it with me to this judge but she refused to look at it.

Thomas Loomes: I'm sure she did. I've no doubt about it.

I myself: Em. So I mean how is this not judicial misconduct if she ignores precedents Thomas Loomes: Judicial misconduct. [. . .] Anyway. I have no interest. Sorry about that.
